JONATHAN OLVERA

TOPIC:

- UNSTABLE SEQUNCES AND RESULT OF GENARATIVE LIQUIDS
- ENETHOGEN TERMINAL AND OXIDAISE EFFECT

How does the exposure to Uneven liquids in a consumation by a more stable Organic matter react when it is exposed to the stimuli?

It creates a axiom effect where the mass total of color variety and numerical total of difference is percievable to be real to the replication and intake properties.

Why is it an effect of Organic properties?

The effect is more difficult to express using observations.

It is a numerical theory of the general axiom theory of existance and Spheres of Dimension.

- Manase
- Nothing
- Mass
- Heat
- Non Heat
- Terminal Polarity

The observations are considered more surgical and the application of normal visuals has to be defined in the need to use the variations of :

- non excitement
- natural exposure
- induced exposure

The application of stimuli involving contact in the:

- Phosphate - Contractile
- Mucus
- Surface Mucus

Is more definitive of a proceedure due to the effects of the exposure can modify the Nucleic sequence to become modified and adapt to a exposure condition.

This is considered a natural exposure when used correctly and is effective using material(s) in assisting in progression in Pysical and Genetic Developement.

Contact and Fricction is beneficial only when reasuring behavior goes along with unmonitored sexual contact.

- Proper Hygine
- Natural Contact
- Combustive Maneuvers
- Behavior Therapy

The use of this information to signify social issues is still experimental.

Social constructs and the sphere of interpretation are measured and applied to the platform of social interactions. The totality of foundational principles and ideology is directly connected to the human need to continue.

The replication of this idea, and the next phase of action, is seen as halted. The definition of a continued theory regarding sacrifice and the dimensional measure of interaction is a radical concept to apply to this science.

Why is it a radical idea?

Humans are exposed daily to toxic vapors, lethal pathogens, and drugs like methamphetamine, as well as firearms.

It is interesting to measure and observe the extent of this social sphere and platform to generate an image of genocide, domestic murder/slaughter, and human trafficking.

It is the dimensions of this construct and the rules of contact and human exposure that make this a very difficult topic to approach logically. It is closely associated with the acts of kidnapping, murder, drug trafficking, and assassination.

Deaths can be linked to this individual study.

Behavior becomes an issue, leading to stalking, harassment, murder, and rape.